Back in 2001, LUNA Bar created LUNAFEST, the world's first traveling film festival featuring films by and about women. Why is that important? Because more women and gender nonconforming people in film means more perspectives. More inspiration for us to be our true selves. It shines a spotlight on more communities. Builds more confidence. Creates more joy. And on top of that, LUNAFEST has raised over $7 million for women's causes.

This year, you have the opportunity to attend a new season of LUNAFEST and see seven stunning new short films that celebrate themes of friendship, bravery, and community. The directors of these films are also poets, conservationists, activists, and educators—by venturing into their worlds, they change the way we see our own. The festival will be screened locally by: <HOST NAME> on <DATE> at <TIME>, and all proceeds benefit <BENEFICIARY NAME> and Chicken & Egg Pictures! For more information, visit [URL].
